

Spanish Cortes Meet in Secret To Hear Matesa Scandal Story

By Richard Edgar

MADRID, June 30 (NYT)—The Spanish Cortes, or parliament, met today in secret plenary session for the first time in its history to hear a report that criticized one member of the cabinet and two former members in connection with a huge financial scandal. The Cortes has 554 members.

U.S. Proposes Wider Ban on Biochemicals

GENEVA, June 30 (Reuters)—The United States today formally moved to include chemical toxins in a British-proposed treaty to outlaw biological weapons now before the 25-nation Geneva disarmament conference.

Toxins are poisonous chemical substances produced by biological organisms including microbes, animals and plants. Examples are diphtheria toxin, tetanus toxin, and snake and bee venom.

Woman Awarded $1 Million in Air Crash Suit

CHICAGO, June 30 (Reuters)—A 77-year-old Indianapolis social worker was awarded $1 million in damages—the largest award in American history—in a jury verdict yesterday.

Positions Clarified At SALT Session

VIENNA, June 30 (AP)—The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) continued here today with a conference source saying "positions have been considerably clarified... and the approaches have become more clearly defined."

Human Savagery Taking Toll Of Animals at Marseilles Zoo

MARSEILLES, June 30 (AP)—It's probably safer in the jungle, Jim Frey, the Marseilles-born director of the Marseilles zoo, says he is having trouble keeping his animals alive these days because of the savagery of people on the other side of the bars.

said was "official climate" of benevolence "toward" the company, known as Matesa, "a total" sense on the part of the majority of authorities in the "benevolence" was exercised on behalf of the founder, Matesa, Barcelona industrialist, Juan Vila Reyes. According to an investigation, Mr. Vila Reyes, a missionary zeal in promoting Spanish exports—notably his own—had been right up to the cabinet minister level.

Mr. Vila Reyes was convicted in 1967 of taking currency out of Spain and fined $300,000. At the time, his exports were so large that his company prevented the cabinet from giving him a decoration as an "order of great merit."

The total irrecoverable damage from the Matesa scandal is estimated at $15 million. The charge of negligence is made with particular force against two ministers, who lost their jobs in a cabinet reshuffle last October due to the scandal. They are Juan Espinosa San Martin, and Mariano Garcia Monzon, who headed the Finance and Commerce Departments.

Klan Rolls Rising, Spurred by Riots, Wizard Declares

SALISBURY, N.C., June 30 (UPI)—Klansman Klux Klan is flourishing throughout the United States, according to its Imperial Wizard, Bob Shelton.

The Wizard said the national convention held last weekend, and Mr. Shelton said: "Membership is increasing tremendously throughout the country." He cited reasons for the increase, including the riots in the cities and on campuses, and the "demoralization" of the "majority."

New SAM-3s May Be Responsible

Israel Reports 2 Jets Lost Over Canal; Cairo Claims 4

TEL AVIV, June 30 (UPI)—Israeli jets attacked along the Suez Canal today and two were shot down, according to an Israeli spokesman. Cairo, however, claimed that four were knocked out of the sky above the canal's central sector.

The Tel Aviv official said that after ground fire downed the jets, "the planes" crews abandoned their aircraft and were seen parachuting over Egyptian territory. The Cairo official said three Israeli pilots were captured. He added that the aircraft were American planes. He said that the "killed" brought to 175 the number of Israeli warplanes shot down since the Six-Day War of 1967. (Israel put its aircraft losses to ground fire at 23 since the 1967 war.)

In Beirut, experts said the Egyptian performance posed the possibility that Egypt had succeeded in preparing for battle its SAM-3 missile network in the canal zone.

Previous reports in the Lebanese capital had said that the Egyptians had already built SAM-3 bases in the canal zone but had not been able to install the missiles and their attendant radar networks because of daily Israeli air attacks.

The spokesman said that Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser said in a recent speech in Libya that the Egyptians would "very soon" have a perfect air defense system around the canal.

Ground fighting flared along the canal today, a Cairo spokesman reported. Israeli jets also staged a brief raid on Arab guerrilla bases in Jordan in retaliation, an Israeli spokesman said, for rocket attacks on Israeli border settlements.

The spokesman said the jets hit the bases for 30 minutes and all aircraft returned safely. Earlier, he said, the town of Beisan and the nearby settlement of Yardenia were hit with rockets. Beisan was hit twice but there were no casualties in the attacks, according to the official.

Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin returned to his Washington post today from the talks with Mr. Maudling, complained that the home secretary had made no mention of the reforms and had failed to give Catholics any "sense of security, protection and some sort of comfort."

"The Labor government was a good friend of ours," said Mr. Devlin, who is no relative of Bernadette Devlin, the 23-year-old Catholic member of the British Parliament. Her jailing on Friday for riotous behavior last autumn touched off violent Catholic protests this past weekend. The Protestant extremist, the Rev. Ian Paisley, has been jailed twice because of his participation in sectarian demonstrations.

Many Protestants are taking a hard-line view of the situation now. The deputy prime minister, Brian Faulkner, and Mr. Paisley alike have criticized the British Army for its failure to prevent the weekend bloodshed. Orange Order officials are calling for the rearming of the police and for a tougher stand on law and order.

There is little sympathy in the government for the "minority" Catholic position at present. Officials point to legislation under way for a central housing authority to promote and allocate fairly thousands of new houses and the impending impartial reorganization of local government. Protestants note that Catholic complaints about voting rights have been met and an ombudsman's office has been established. The police force has been disbanded and put under impartial control and the "B Specials"—paramilitary police drawn from Protestant volunteers—have been disbanded.

Continued Catholic violence, some Protestants say, is unjustified and can only be directed at discrimination for its own sake or directed, somehow, at promotion of a reunited Catholic Ireland.

$140,000 Bulge Is Abortive

ISTANBUL, June 30 (AP)—A German woman has been taken into custody here after she was found to be "pregnant" with about $140,000 worth of cash in various currencies, police said today.

They said Franziska Walburga, 42, of Cologne, was picked up at Istanbul Airport before boarding a flight for Beirut yesterday evening.

Her appearance aroused the suspicion of a customs officer. She claimed her bulge was due to pregnancy, but when a female official searched her the "baby" was found to be 1.2 million Turkish liras, 27,148 German marks and assorted smaller amounts in other currencies, police said.

Millions Said to Have Hit-or-Miss Program Task Force Urges Revamp Of U.S. Health Care Setup

By Harold M. Schmeck Jr.

WASHINGTON, June 30 (NYT)—A high-level study group, appointed a year ago to advise the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare on what to do about the Medicaid program, has concluded that there must be sweeping changes in the entire American health care system.

The panel's report, made public yesterday, said millions of Americans get their health care on a hit-or-miss basis, millions more lack access to care except in crisis situations and virtually all consumers lack access to the decision-making machinery that can bring about change.

The report recommended, among other things, that the federal government pay for all basic benefits of Medicaid. At present the funding is on a federal-state matching basis.

In sum, all of the recommendations would shift emphasis in American health care away from private, independent medical practice toward such alternatives as group practice, pre-paid health maintenance plans and ultimately some equivalent to national health insurance.

"There isn't enough money and there aren't enough doctors to provide the needed care just on a fee-for-service basis," the panel's report said. "Thus, any solution will require new options, new goals and new attitudes."

It said that more money poured into the present system would bring a disastrous rise in the cost of services that are already scarce. However, the report also emphasized that the nation cannot simply withhold money while waiting for the development of a more perfect system.

"It is a central conclusion of the task force that money is needed, but that money alone will not guarantee either capacity or effectiveness to the system," said the report. The 27-member panel is called the Task Force on Medicaid and Related Programs. The chairman is Walter J. McNerney, president of the Blue Cross Association. The group includes representatives of industry, labor, consumers, health and social sciences service groups.

Medicaid is a federal-state medical public assistance program for the poor and others for whom medical costs become overwhelming. The details vary from state to state.

"The promise of Medicaid, that at least some care would be available to all who needed it, has vanished into the obscurity of state determinations of eligibility and the vagaries of state determinations of solvency," the report said. The task force estimated that only about a third of the 30 million to 40 million people who could potentially be covered by Medicaid actually receive its services.

"That the cost of covering less than one third has exceeded earlier estimates of the cost of covering the whole medically deprived population is due to a combination of factors, including inflation," the report said. "It also suggests how badly the expenditures have been controlled or how badly the costs were estimated, or both."

Greek General Dies, Helped Thwart King

ATHENS, June 30 (AP)—Retired Maj. Gen. Dimitrios Pafilis, 88, who was instrumental in thwarting King Constantine's attempt to oust the ruling military junta in December 1967, died today after suffering a massive cerebral hemorrhage two months ago. He was 88.

Nicknamed the "pajama clad general" because he rose from his sickbed to organize resistance against the king's forces, Gen. Pafilis was rewarded by Premier George Papadopoulos and made second deputy premier. He was minister for northern Greece at the time.

Gen. Pafilis was a member of the original junta that seized power and suspended parliamentary rule in April 1967. He had retired in 1964 with the rank of major general and was recalled to active service at the time of the coup.

Eric Kahler

PRINCETON, N.J., June 30 (NYT)—Eric Kahler, 84, a cultural historian who had taught at universities here and abroad, died Sunday at Princeton Hospital.

Mr. Kahler, born in Prague, came to the United States in 1938 as a refugee from Germany. He was invited to Princeton at the suggestion of his friend, the author Thomas Mann, himself a refugee from Hitlerism. Here Mr. Kahler joined a circle that included Albert Einstein, Ernest R. Kantorowicz, Hermann Broch, Hermann Weyl, Wolfgang Pauli and Mr. Mann.

Before the advent of Nazism, Mr. Kahler lectured at the universities of Munich and Heidelberg. In the United States he taught at the New School, Black Mountain College, Cornell, Ohio State and Princeton. He was a member of the Institute for Advanced Study here.

T-Men Investigate Borrowers of Books on Bombs

DETROIT, June 30 (AP)—Federal agents seeking to identify individuals who checked out books on explosives have been searching library files, a Milwaukee librarian said yesterday.

Vivian Maddox said at the American Library Association convention here that agents from the Treasury Department were denied access to the files several times, but were given the files after the Milwaukee city attorney said the records were public.

A Richmond, Calif., librarian said Treasury agents seeking similar records came to his library also, but did not pursue the matter after they were denied access to the files.

A spokesman for the Treasury Department said in Washington: "What is reported by the librarians is part of a routine investigation. I can't say where they're doing it or how widespread it is, but it's probably not very widespread because the unit doesn't have that many officers."

Orchestra Restricted

BAD HERSFELD, Germany, June 30 (AP)—Czechoslovak authorities have withdrawn the foreign travel permit of Prague's Radio Symphony Orchestra, forcing it to cancel an annual appearance at a music festival in this West German town, the concert organizers reported yesterday. A spokesman said other unidentified Czechoslovak orchestras have also been refused permission to appear in West Germany, but gave no further details.

U.S. Examines Prescribed Use Of Behavior Drug in School

WASHINGTON, June 30 (NYT)—A federal agency and the chairman of a congressional study of invasions of privacy ordered separate investigations yesterday into reports that perhaps as many as 10 percent of the school children of Omaha, Neb., are taking prescribed "behavior modification" drugs.

A preliminary inquiry, and later hearings if any federal funds are found to be involved, was ordered by Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D.-N.J., who heads a continuing study on alleged invasions of privacy for the House Government Operations Committee.

An investigation of the Omaha situation was also ordered by Dr. Charles C. Edwards, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. Edwards said he was concerned about allegations that large numbers of children—a Washington Post article had an estimate of between 5 and 10 percent of the city's 62,000 school children—were being prescribed improperly.

"Behavior" Drugs

According to yesterday's Post, school children identified by their teachers as having behavior and learning problems were given one of several "behavior modification" drugs, such as Ritalin, Dexedrine and Zofran, on the prescription of their family physicians.

The practice, according to this report, originated in Omaha with Dr. Byron B. Oberst, a pediatrician who spread the word of its potential after attending a Syracuse University seminar on hyperactive children.

According to many experts the use of such drugs to treat children with learning disabilities that are the result of "perceptual deficits"—generally children suffering brain damage or some form of neurological disorder—is widespread, although still controversial.

Don Warner, assistant superintendent of Omaha schools, said last night that the school system's involvement was only that of "cooperation." This was to the extent of taking part in seminar discussions of learning disabilities and of allowing teachers when asked by parents, to "hold" a child's medication.

Death Certificate To Be Given for Aborted Fetus

NEW YORK, June 30 (NYT)—Physicians who perform abortions under the new state law that goes into effect tomorrow will issue a death certificate for the fetus, a spokesman for the city's Health Services Administration confirmed yesterday.

The spokesman said such a death certificate had long been required under the city's health code and had been issued for each therapeutic abortion performed here in the past.

The death certificate is issued simply as a matter of "record keeping," the spokesman said. It is required no matter how early in a pregnancy the fetus is removed. A new shortened death certificate is planned for abortion cases. Unlike the old one, it will not list the father's name.

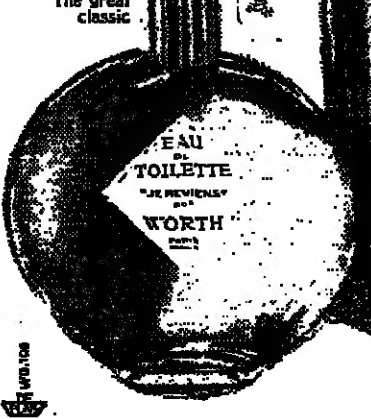

Zurich Considers Night Flight Ban

ZURICH, June 30 (Reuters)—The Zurich Canton parliament yesterday took a step toward banning night flights which could curb operations at one of Europe's busiest airports.

Parliament asked the cantonal government to submit to it a detailed law banning flights, which, if approved, would have to be put to a referendum.

Before it could come into effect the Zurich government would have to seek a change in the federal government concession to the canton, which stipulates that the airport must remain open at all times.

U.S. Official Sees Rise In Second-Quarter GNP

By Eoin Belton

WASHINGTON, June 30 (Reuters).—The U.S. gross national product (GNP) reversed two successive real declines to score a fractional advance in the second 1970 quarter ending today, Commerce Department assistant secretary Harold Passer said today.

If the estimates are borne out, officials say, the economy may be on the way to shrugging off its recessionary doldrums.

After dipping 0.4 percent in the fourth 1969 quarter and three percent in the first 1970 quarter, the real GNP swung up by an estimated 0.1 or 0.2 percent in the current quarter, he said in an interview.

Price Slowdown
Mr. Passer, who supervises compilation of the GNP figures, attributed the turnaround mainly to a marked slowdown in the overall price index.

Mr. Passer said that this index (which will be announced with the GNP figures in about two weeks) advanced at an annual rate of about 4.5 percent in the second quarter, down from the 8.25 percent rate of climb in the first quarter.

Mr. Passer confessed he had some reservations earlier about the viability of achieving the officially forecast 3.4 percent annual rate GNP deflator by end-1970, but now fully endorsed the possibility of this relatively subdued rate of inflation.

Mr. Passer said a second important factor in the swing in the real value of the national output of goods and services was the pick-up in retail sales and general consumer spending toward the end of the current quarter.

He forecast the actual GNP would advance to $80 billion in money terms by the end of 1970 compared with $63 billion at the end of 1969. This agrees with revised forecasts of the Council of Economic Advisors and represents a real growth of 0.5 to 1 percent.

Mr. Passer also assessed that federal and state expenditure increased in the second quarter, to an extent at least offsetting the impact on the public sector of defense cut-backs. He said the main weight of government concern now was to protect against too rapid a pick-up in the second half of the year.

Factory Orders Rise
WASHINGTON, June 30 (Reuters).—Boisterous expectations of an economic upturn was the announcement today that new factory orders rose 2.5 percent or $1.4 billion in May to a seasonally adjusted $54.8 billion after a revised decline of 0.9 percent in April.

This was the first upturn since...

IOS Says It Believes the Worst Is Over

By Philip Greer

TORONTO, June 30 (WP).—Mutual funds managed by state-owned IOS Ltd. suffered net redemptions of $88 million in May as sales tumbled to $116.8 million against $271.3 million in the same month of 1969, the company's new chairman confirmed today.

In June, Sir Eric Wyndham White told the annual shareholders' meeting IOS expects net redemptions of about $45 million and sales of about $130 million.

"We believe the bottom has been reached," he told more than 400 shareholders jammed into a stuffy room at the Royal York Hotel here. "The foundations of the company continue to be as strong today as they were at its inception."

Sir Eric, the former director general of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade who took over control of IOS in mid-May, also revealed that by May 31 the company's sales force had fallen to 10,776, down from more than 15,000 at the end of 1969. "The major decreases" came Germany, he said. Pinning the blame for IOS's problems squarely on the former management—but without naming any of them—Sir Eric said the company will undergo a complete reworking, from its sprawling operating divisions to its formerly lush stock option plan.

The reference to the stock option plan, a complicated structure with strong incentives for productive salesmen and employees, brought sharp questioning from those at the meeting, who were mostly Canadian salesmen. The plan is considered the key impetus for what many observers call the most aggressive sales force in the world.

At the end of his 20-minute talk, Sir Eric received a loud 30-second ovation and thanked the shareholders for what he considered their expression of confidence.

The new chairman made several references to the "mistakes" of the former management, none of whose key figures were at the meeting. He said the company needs to be "systematized and made responsible. And I emphasize responsible," he added.

He criticized the former management team for making over-optimistic earnings projections and for allowing costs to run out of control. This year, he said, the company hopes to cut its overhead from $80 million to $40 million annually.

Bernard Cornfield, founder and former chairman of IOS, had told the directors over the weekend that he would not attend the meeting, but IOS aides conceded they were uncertain of his intentions right up to the last minute.

The session, in fact, almost did not take place at all. Soon after the call to order, a Canadian attorney representing two IOS executives made a motion that the gathering adjourn. He cited what he called changes in the proxy statement.

After learning that the motion would require a shareholders vote that would have taken an estimated seven hours, the attorney withdrew the motion. Another motion for adjournment, in mid-afternoon, was voted down by a show of hands.

In his talk to shareholders and in answer to questions afterwards, Sir Eric conceded that IOS is short of ready cash but denied that it needs to be rescued by other financial institutions.

In answer to questions about loans made by IOS-controlled banks to the company's officers, directors and friends, Sir Eric said that all future loans of that type would have to be approved by the chairman.

The new chairman went to great lengths to explain the commercial sale of mineral rights in the Canadian Arctic, which generated virtually all of the $10.3 million profit reported by IOS for 1969. Conceding that "the timing and complexity of the transaction have raised questions in the financial press," he said "the policy of present management is to refrain from investments which are not readily marketable."

After the sale, the asset value of the Natural Resources Fund operated by IOS's Fund of Funds was increased by $78 million. A performance fee of $9.7 million was paid to IOS, although the funds received less than $800,000 in cash, along with $7.5 million in notes payable from 1975 to 1979.

Penn Central Bankruptcy Need Questioned

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Rep. Brock Adams, D., Wash., has asked just why the Penn Central railroad went into bankruptcy when a wholly-owned subsidiary, Pennsylvania Co., had $246 million in retained earnings.

The funds "would have gone a long way" toward keeping the carrier solvent, Rep. Adams said during continuing hearings yesterday before the House Commerce Committee on a bill to provide $750 million in government-guaranteed loans to rescue ailing railroads.

The hearings were resumed today until further notice. House investigators said today they had found some evidence that large sales of Penn Central stock were made before the company went bankrupt "on the basis of insider information obtained by some officers and directors of the Penn Central."

A spokesman said investigations were under way to discover whether there were any illegal financial manipulations involved. The report disclosed that as of April 1970, 11 of the company's 14 directors also sat on the boards of 12 U.S. commercial banks.

The largest single Penn Central stockholder as of Dec. 31, 1969, the report said, was Morgan Guaranty Trust with $49,276 shares, representing 2.4 percent of total shares outstanding. Morgan, it added, also had two directors on Penn Central's board at that time.

As of Dec. 31, 1969, the report said, First National City Bank of New York held by far the most Penn Central debt—$386.61 million. Despite mounting apprehension that other roads may be heading toward trouble, it has become clear that the legislation faces long scrutiny—perhaps two months—before clearing the committee.

Several members wondered if the Penn railroad operation had not deteriorated as the result of diverting revenues toward acquisition of diversified interests such as real estate and pipelines.

"You know they drained off money for purposes that had nothing to do with railroading," Mr. Staggers told the ICC witnesses. On another front, Penn Central's problems mounted as the Supreme Court raised the price it must pay for properties of the bankrupt New Haven railroad by $28 million to $176 million.

The 4-to-2 decision upheld the figure fixed by a reorganization court, a figure subsequently knocked down to $150 million by a New York federal district court.

In dissent, Justice Hugo L. Black wrote that the $28 million added burden "can only bring about a further deterioration of the Penn Central's already seriously compromised financial position and will further reduce the ultimate chances of success of this venture in which the public has a considerable stake."

In Philadelphia, federal Judge

John P. Pulliam yesterday signed two orders barring ten banks from foreclosing for Penn Central loans totaling $54 million and allowing the railroad to borrow another $50 million. The railroad said it could not repay the banks "without liquidation of substantial assets."

The judge was named last week to preside over Penn Central's reorganization.

Rail Union Appeals
WASHINGTON, June 30 (Reuters).—A railroad union official today urged Congress to pass promptly legislation to help financially troubled railroads.

L.E. Dennis, executive director of the Railway and Airline Clerks Union, told the house commerce committee: "We fear the domino effects of the collapse of the Penn Central. We fear the apparent inability of Penn Central to meet its payroll some time during the next three weeks. And we fear that there will be several other railroads taking this same course of action in the next few weeks or months."

But Penn Central denied again that the railroad would fail to meet its payroll. "There is no problem meeting our payroll in the foreseeable future. The payroll will be met," a spokesman said.

Rail Association Estimates Needs
WASHINGTON, June 30 (Reuters).—U.S. railroads need more than $600 million annually in various forms of federal government relief, according to the Association of American Railroads (AAR).

At a press conference today, former Sen. George A. Smathers, counsel of an AAR group founded last fall to study railroad problems and needs, said the federal government would be asked to:

• Guarantee up to $400 million annually in loans for improving railroad rights of way.

• Pick up present state and local taxes, estimated by Mr. Smathers to be $200 million annually.

• Advance the 20 percent down-payment required for most advantageous financing and reimburse railroads for interest payments above 4 percent.

Steel Firm Is Sued, Settles on Reciprocity
WASHINGTON, June 30 (NYT).—In the third such case against a major steel company in a year, the Justice Department brought suit today against Republic Steel Corp. for engaging in allegedly illegal reciprocal business arrangements.

Republic, like U.S. Steel Corp. and Inland Steel Co. before it, agreed to a settlement of the suit.

The settlement would bar Republic, for a period of ten years, from making any agreements similar to those challenged by the suit, i.e. making its purchases from any supplier conditional upon the supplier's buying from Republic Steel.

The agreement also prohibits Republic "from discussing with any supplier or contractor the relationship of purchases and sales between them or from comparing statistical data to further such a relationship," the department said. "The firm is further prohibited from maintaining statistical compilations that compare sales to and purchases from suppliers," it added.

The agreement also prohibits Republic from "re-establishing its former business development division and from establishing any other office to promote trade relations involving reciprocal purchasing agreements."

Justice said Republic had engaged in reciprocal arrangements since at least 1963.

Algeria Demands Healthy Rate Cut From French Firms Owning Pipeline
ALGER, June 30 (AP).—The Algerian government disclosed today that it has ordered the French owners of a 485-mile oil pipeline from In Amenas to the Tunisian port of La Skirra to cut rates sharply or face unspecified government action.

A government statement accused French oil companies of artificially inflating rates on their "Traps" (Transport by Pipeline in the Sahara) pipe to raise costs on their own oil and thereby cut Algerian government revenues.

Algeria has demanded that the rate should be cut to 11 dinars ($2.20) a ton from the current 15 dinars ($3) retroactively to Jan. 1, 1969, when the rates were 19 dinars. This would represent a cut of more than 10 million in pipeline payments this year, plus refunds of some $20 million for "excessive" charges in 1968.

Traps moves some 13.5 million tons of oil out of the Sahara every year—almost one-third of Algeria's total production. More than 60 percent of Algerian oil production is still under French control, but the government has ordered the French oil companies to pay more than 70 percent of their turnover into Algerian accounts pending settlement of a drawdown dispute over oil prices.

IBM Unveils New 370 Line Of Computers

Stresses Europe Role In Model Production

NEW YORK, June 30.—International Business Machines announced today the development of a successor to its 360 line—a new medium and large-scale computer system which it said is faster and has a higher storage capacity than previous models.

The giant of the world's computer industry said:

"We are confident that the performance of the system-370, its compatibility, its engineering and its programming, which would make it the stand-out for the '70s that system-360, which currently accounts for a substantial part of the IBM computer market, was in the '60s."

IBM said the new system will come in two models, the 155 and 165. Both are currently in production and are expected to be available early next year.

IBM said both models operate between four and five times faster internally than the old model.

"The requirement of the '70s will make new demands on computer users," said F. G. Rodgers, president of the company's data processing division. "To do the job, banks, manufacturing firms and insurance companies—as well as government agencies and many scientific users—need faster, more efficient computers and larger capacity data storage. System-370 meets these requirements."

Monthly rental for a typical 155 model would be $47,968, and it would sell for $2.2 million. For the 165, rental would be $59,715 and sale $4.5 million.

In simultaneous announcements in London and Paris today, IBM stressed the "multinational" effort involved in the development of the 370. The 155 is already being produced in France, the firm said, with parts being produced in Britain, West Germany and Sweden.

The new models can use all existing IBM peripheral devices as well as a new 2,000-line-a-minute printer and a 800 million character capacity disc storage, IBM said.

In Minneapolis, Minn., Honeywell Inc. said IBM's announcement "has been anticipated for several months and contains no surprises."

Bank Xerox Study
LONDON, June 30 (Reuters).—Rank Xerox said today it is studying the feasibility of manufacturing Xerox's Signs computers in Europe, and has set up a new operating division, Rank Xerox data systems.

Vetruy Holland, a possible location, it said. The Venray plant, main production center for copiers for the Continental market, is at present being expanded and further expansion is feasible.

Italian Reserves Show Gain in May Of $445 Million
ROME, June 30 (Reuters).—Italy's net official reserves rose by 278.2 billion lire ($445 million) in May to 2,730.2 billion ($437 billion) from 2,452 billion in April, the Bank of Italy said today.

The chief factor in the month was a 472.4 billion lire fall in short-term indebtedness, mainly swaps with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to 211.9 billion lire from 684.3 billion in April.

Financial sources noted that over $400 million entered Italy in May through the state-owned Ente Nazionale per l'Energia Elettrica bond issue plus private placement and this factor probably permitted the reduction in short-term debts.

Prices Close Mixed to Lower After Morning Gains in N.Y.

By Vartan G. Vartan

NEW YORK, June 30 (NYT).—The stock market closed out the June quarter today with mixed-to-lower readings in the popular New York Stock Exchange indicators. There was a pronounced weakness in IBM, Wall Street's most famous growth stock.

IBM fell 7 1/2 to 250 as a big loser in the computer group. Its action, which some analysts described as "rather surprising," followed the introduction of a long-awaited new computer system. The shares traded early this year at a record price of 287.

The Dow Jones industrial average, slipping steadily during the session after being ahead nearly 4 points in the opening hour, closed at 683.53 with a razor-edge gain of 0.82. The NYSE index, tracing a similar downward pattern for all listed issues, dipped 0.10 to 39.58. Standard & Poor's 500 lost 0.17 at 72.72.

Caution continued high in the investment community, while volume continued low. The turnover of 8.28 million shares ran well below the 1970 average of 10.8 million shares.

Penn Central, the company responsible for much of the market's current cautious attitude, backtracked 1/3 to 5 3/4 as the most active issue after equalling last week's low of 6 1/2.

Stock prices generally have moved along a downgrade since June 21, when the Penn Central's railroad subsidiary filed for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws. Several railroad-oriented averages have now dropped to 12-year lows mainly as a result of this.

But some posted gains today after suffering steep drops yesterday. Norfolk & Western rose 1 1/4 to 56 1/2 after its drop of 4 7/8. Louisville & Nashville added 1/4 to 51, following its decline yesterday of 4 points.

Two computer equipment stocks were casualties on the active roster. Electronic Memories and Magnetics, the second most heavily traded issue, fell 2 1/4 to 8 1/2. After the market close yesterday, the company forecast a decline in its second-quarter profits. Memorex dropped 2 3/8 to 62 1/8. The stock is down from its 1970 high of 166 3/4.

One broker declared there were "absolutely no surprises" in President Nixon's report today on military operations in Cambodia. The Dow indicator has been locked in a trading range between approximately 680 and 720 since the end of May. "I suspect that we will continue to have a dull summer," said one Wall Street analyst. Among the blue chips, American Telephone rose 3/8 to 41 1/4 and General Motors added 3/8 to 62 1/8. Chrysler dipped 1/8 to 18. The nation's third largest automaker is tagged as "still a high-risk situation" by Standard & Poor's outlook.

NYSE Sends Revised Plan For Rate Structure to SEC

NEW YORK, June 30 (NYT).—The New York Stock Exchange has abandoned plans for any further volume discounts on commission rates and would restrict the rate increases on most small transactions to 50 percent under a plan submitted to the Securities and Exchange Commission today.

The proposed new rate structure represents a substantial departure, both in philosophy and scope, from the rate package presented to the SEC for study last February. That had called for rate boosts of more than 100 percent on some small trades as well as volume discounts on most transactions above 300 shares in size.

R. John Cunningham, executive NYSE vice-president, also confirmed that rate increases probably would be requested on almost all transactions up to and including 1,000 shares.

He said the Exchange had decided to define the small investor as an individual who does not buy or sell more than $5,000 worth of stock at a time. Such an individual would not have to pay rate increases of more than 50 percent.

Mr. Cunningham said the Exchange would repeat its request for a 90-day extension of the $15 commission surcharge that expires Monday.

It had been approved by the SEC to give Wall Street rate relief on an interim basis because of the severe opening bid being recorded by many brokerage houses.

In general, however, the smallest rate boosts under the new plan would be applied to transactions of 1,000 shares, with the increases becoming larger as the size of the trade diminishes, until the 50 percent maximum increase is reached.

Merger Plan
NEW YORK, June 30 (NYT).—Merger discussions are under way between Moore & Schley, Inc., and Dreyfus & Co., spokesman for both NYSE firms confirmed yesterday.

The spokesman, both of whom asked for anonymity, said that "another meeting is scheduled in the next day or two."

Both firms are capitalized for about $45 million, and they both do $6 million to $7 million volume annually.

Moore & Schley is best known for its institutional trade. Dreyfus & Co. owned Dreyfus Corp., the company that manages the Dreyfus Fund. At that time, the Dreyfus Corp. went public.

The spokesman for Moore & Schley emphasized that his company's interest in Dreyfus was in its retail business.

California Bankruptcy
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., June 30 (Reuters).—Fidler Securities Corp., a brokerage house here, has filed a bankruptcy petition.

The firm stopped trading in securities last week, said the petition, when it was in violation of the SEC net capital rule which requires a firm to have $1 of its own funds for every $20 it owes.

STOCKHOLM, June 30.—European pairs dominated the standings after the first day of play in the world pair championship here yesterday. With 48 deals completed of a scheduled 288, the leaders were: Arne Persson and Einar Pyk of Stockholm, 4,563; Niels Henriksen and Peter Lund of Aarhus, Denmark, 4,450; Giuseppe Saulino and Mario Zanasi of La Spezia, Italy, 4,391; Jean Besse and John Collins of Geneva, 4,287.

The talking point of the tournament was the victory of 74-year-old New York expert Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Barbara Brier of Miami, Fla., in the mixed pairs event here Sunday.

A different opening lead on the diagramed deal could have changed the result of the tournament. The winners held the North-South cards against Rini Markus of London, and George Castellia of Louisiana, Switzerland, who led for most of the tournament and finally finished second.

Von Zedtwitz held the North hand, and adopted an expert sequence when his partner responded one heart to one club. He reversed with two diamonds, showed his heart support on the third round, and gave up when his partner insisted on no trump.

As the bidding made it clear that South was fully prepared for a spade lead, West might well have considered leading a diamond. Dummy's second suit is often the weak point for the declaring side, and a diamond lead would have left South struggling to make nine tricks. She would have had to guess the location of the club queen to make the contract, and would have had no chance to make overtricks.

West actually led the spade four, which was a popular choice at other tables. When her partner took the spade ace and returned the jack, South tricked skilfully to make 11 tricks. She took the spade king and played the six of clubs to dummy's nine. When this won, she could safely return to the club king, cash the spade queen, and take winners in the dummy. East made his heart queen at the finish, but the two overtricks gave North-South 152 match points out of a possible 222.

THE LOVE THAT DARED NOT SPEAK ITS NAME

A Candid History of Homosexuality in Britain.
 By H. Montgomery Hyde. Little, Brown. 323 pp. $8.95.
 Reviewed by Richard Freedman

CONSIDERING the disproportionate contribution homosexuals have made to our founding civilization—Socrates, Da Vinci, Michelangelo, Shakespeare (probably), Frost, Tolstoy, to name but a few—and the invaluable role even the less talented ones play in stemming the Population Explosion, one would think a grateful society would give them medals rather than hound them with blackmail, disgrace and jail, and often drive them to suicide.

But society does operate rationally, as this woe-filled history of British homosexuality repeatedly demonstrates. From the savage laws enacted under Henry VIII until the enlightened Wolfenden Act passed three years ago by Parliament, legalizing private homosexual acts between consenting adults, sodomites in what is otherwise the most civilized nation in the world have been persecuted with a viciousness one can only attribute to the sexual iniquities of the "straight" majority.

As a member of the House of Commons in the 1950s, when the Wolfenden Report was first being aired, H. Montgomery Hyde is in an admirable position to discuss the legal aspects of homosexuality, which he does here with clarity, restraint and humanity. Despite its title, derived from a rather mawkish poem by Lord Alfred Douglas—Oscar Wilde's paramour—and quoted against Wilde at his infamous trial, this is a very sober and unsensational account.

Hyde says he became interested in the problem when, as an undergraduate at Oxford, he was assigned the rooms in Magdalen College previously occupied by Wilde. No homosexual himself—he rather ostentatiously declines the book to his wife—Hyde has written prolifically about famous homosexuals, and here sums up a lifetime's study of the subject.

Anglo-Saxon attitudes to homosexuality derive from the Hebrew strain in British Puritanism (by way of Thomas Aquinas and Alfred the Great), and are ultimately based on the stern injunction in Leviticus: "If a man also lie with mankind as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them."

And verily, any number of English homosexuals were so put to death, by hanging or beheading. The death penalty for homosexuals wasn't officially abolished until 1861, although no executions had taken place since 1828.

Until then, of course, the great thing was not to get caught, because regardless of draconian laws, homosexuality has always pervaded all strata of society. From Kings Edward VI and James I, the daisy chain has extended to numerous queer peers (of one such, Sir Winston Churchill blandly remarked that he was the kind of MP who "gave pederasty a bad name"), and down to the faute-de-mieux taggery of the navy, the public schools, and the prisons.

Among the Elizabethans, Marlowe and Bacon were certainly homosexual, as was the Rev. Nicholas Udall, author of the immortal comedy "Ralph Roister Doister." Clerical pederasty flourished in the 18th century, one of my favorite practitioners, for his name and title alone, being the Rev. Robert Thistlethwaite, doctor of divinity and warden of Wadham College, Oxford, whose democratic lineage responded not only to coked undergraduates but to his indignant barber as well.

Lord Castlereagh, who represented England at the post-Napoleonic Congress of Vienna, probably committed suicide because his homosexuality had become generally known—he was the immortal "intellectual couch" of Byron's "Don Juan," an epithet characteristically garbled recently by our literary Vice-President.

The army produced such red-blooded inverters as General Gordon, the Bibb-thumper, brandy-swilling hero of Khartoum, and Lord Kitchener, of whom Queen Victoria once said: "They say he dislikes women, but I can only say he was very nice to me."

And several counts in Eric Lit. could be taught just from the writings of homosexuals. In addition to Marlowe and Bacon, we have William "Vaintrick" Beckford, Edward ("Robinson") Fitzgerald, Norman "South Wind" Douglas, as well as Thomas Gray, John Addington Symonds, Walter Pater, A. E. Housman, Virginia Woolf, Lytton Strachey, Ronald Firbank, and Somerset Maugham.

Of them, the one who suffered most spectacularly, of course, was poor Oscar Wilde, who, after a 15-year sentence in 1895, of a law enacted only ten years earlier, and which was originally intended to protect young girls from white slavery, was convicted under the Criminal Law Amendment Bill of 1885 for really just an afterthought, but it sufficed to condemn Wilde to picking oakum in Reading Gaol, only to emerge two years later a broken man—and more homosexual than ever. "It was like feasting with panthers," Wilde haughtily summed up his predicament; "the danger was that the argument."

Wilde's conviction sent him to the boards of well-toiled inverters scurrying for France, Austria and Italy, where they arranged these things better. But by the 1920s the English temper had become sufficiently liberalized for vast numbers of homosexuals to flourish at Oxford and Cambridge, and the "traffic" of the twenties had a relatively easy time of it.

Yet, the road to the Wolfenden Report has been, in Wilde's words, "long, and red with monstrous martyrdoms," strewn with the victims of man's indomitable will to legislate the private morality of others.

Richard Freedman, who teaches English at Simmons College, wrote this review for Book World, literary supplement of The Washington Post.
